DOUBLE MURDER

by Korinna Krauss

SYNOPSIS

"And then?" – "Then I killed him. Stabbed him to death." Korinna Krauss is talking to Recep Soylou, a man who was imprisoned in Germany for 14 years for a double murder and then deported to Turkey where he has since run a bakery together with his parent-s.The film's dispassionate response to its protagonists and their naïve openness makes it all the more oppressive. The monstrous-ness of what is being discussed is fragmented and thrown into contrast by small absurd everyday stories of the father and son in their bakery. A man and his deed. A thriller.
