

2UNBREAKABLE

by Maike Conway

SYNOPSIS

"Breaking is not about winning –
I like the process that I have with myself.
When I grow as a person, I also grow as a dancer.
I am free in what I am doing.
It makes me happy to dance!"

Joanna (24, BGirl Joanna) and Serhat (26, BBoy Said) share the same passion: Breaking.

In 2024, Breaking will celebrate its Olympic premiere in Paris. They are happy about the opportunity to make their art form more visible to society. At the same time, it is a challenge to do justice to the Breaking Culture and the Olympic System.

From the street to the Olympic stage: Breaking, a new style of dance, was born in New York in the 1970s. Today BBoys and BGirls compete in battles that are judged by a jury. For the first time in history, the breaking scene meets the Olympic system. Serhat is already in the German national squad. He discovered breaking at the age of six at the youth center in Munich's Kieferngarten.

Serhat has been a member of the "Sankofa" crew since 2008. For Serhat, being able to live and...
