

B.B. AND THE SCHOOL BY THE RIVER

by Detlev F. Neufert

SYNOPSIS

B.B. is a courageous boy from the Naga tribe, former headhunters. They live in the inaccessible part of Burma near the Himalayas. At the age of seven he starts with alcohol and claws. At 13 he is close to death. A Christian priest saves him. He sends him to a boarding school in the temple city of Bagan. Here the young Naga meets hard-to-raise children from many different ethnic groups, who often still fight each other. But the children are fed up with fighting. They want to overcome old tribal feuds. But can that really work? In a country that is mostly ruled by the military? A new generation?
