

DIE SPIELWÜTIGEN - ADDICTED TO ACTING

by Andres Veiel

SYNOPSIS

Four acting students are the focus of Andres Veiel's long-term observational documentary. We meet Stephanie, Karina, Constanza and Prodromos while they are preparing for their acting school auditions. The selection procedure takes months; it is a trying, nerve-racking time spent vacillating between hope and anxiety. All four make it into the school, but their initial euphoria about commencing their studies – including group exercises, role play and obligatory fencing lessons – is soon followed by deflation in the face of merciless criticism of even the slightest shortcoming by their tutors. In this way, their passion for their chosen vocation is constantly put to the test.

The four students couldn't be more different: Karina appears to have very few problems; Stephanie, however, has to endure several auditions. Constanza immerses herself in her roles, whilst Prodromos always seems to be at odds with himself, his roles and his dreams. Andres...
