

DRIFTING PARADISE

by Cedric Retzmann

SYNOPSIS

Life starts to become serious for Kurt, Lucas and their friends who are around 20 years old living in a sparsely populated area with many woods in the North of Thuringia in Germany. Their outlet is Drifting – the intentional oversteering of cars with loss of traction while maintaining control. While they search for their place in life, their friendships start changing. DRIFTING PARADISE is a long-term observation documenting those changes and provides an inside into this special microcosmos that is dominated by questions on identity, solidarity and growing up.
