

FISSION

by João Pedro Prado, Anton Yaremchuk

SYNOPSIS

2025

CPH:DOX

2025

DOK.fest München – German Competition

2025

Kraków International Film FestivalA warm film about a hot topic. Is nuclear power the future, or...? The locals of two small European towns throw themselves into the discussion in a film with humor and heart, even though the stakes are high.

The climate crisis, Germany's nuclear phase-out and Russia's war against Ukraine are just three of the heavy pieces in the dramatic game about the future of energy. A game with global and unpredictable consequences far beyond where the electricity will be coming from tomorrow. And in the middle of the game we find two small European towns with barely a thousand inhabitants each.

Gundremmingen in Bavaria is located around a deactivated nuclear power plant, while the small Polish town of Choczewo will open its first nuclear power plant in 2033. What do the good people on the ground think about it all? 'Fission' is a stylish film with humor and heart, all of which is a rare sight in...

2025

74 min

ORIGINAL TITLE

FISSION

FORMAL CATEGORIES

Conflicts, Sustainability, Politics, Science

PREMIERE

Germany (2025)

CAST AND CREW

DIRECTOR João Pedro Prado, Anton Yaremchuk