

FORGET ME NOT

by David Sieveking, Catrin Vogt

SYNOPSIS

In FORGET ME NOT, David Sieveking portrays the domestic care of his mother Gretel, who, like millions of others, is suffering from Alzheimer's disease.

David's parents were active in the student movement of the 1960s and led an „open relationship“, which is now being tested in a dramatic way through the mother's illness.

The changes taking place within the mother forces the family to deal with its own conflicts and even teaches them new ways to express their feelings and experience intimacy, bringing them all closer together.

With humor and candor, David Sieveking's family chronicle is characterized by unaffected participation and loving affection, where it is the human being at the center of the story, not the illness.
