

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN!

by Derya Durmaz

SYNOPSIS

The barriers and boundaries created by patriarchal social and gender norms and bigotry that prevent us from simply being ourselves... have we really managed to sink that ship?

Still constrained, still violated by those norms to different degrees in different parts of the world, can we avoid the danger of constraining ourselves with new norms we create, which we should rather treat as a work in progress? After all, aren't we human beings ever a work in progress?
