

LAND IN SIGHT

by Antje Kruska, Judith Keil

SYNOPSIS

Paradise does have its downsides. Unlike the biblical Christians who want to enlighten him, Brian, an asylum seeker from Cameroon, has hopes for this life – and that's clearly situated in Germany. Unfortunately he has ended up in Bad Belzig in Brandenburg, where there's little excitement except for an amateur belly dance group and a marching band. He has no 'useful' country of origin to show for – right now there's no war in Cameroon, only a lack of opportunity. The Yemenite soldier Abdul, who would rather carry arms in civilian life and work in security, is in a similar situation. Farid from Iran for his part can't go back for political reasons and can't bring his family over without residence status. Three open-ended fates which the two directors accompany with their usual thoroughness over the course of a year in their fourth film together as they attempt to understand the wordings of the employment agency and the red tape jungle, and to find a German wife, if need...
