

MAYBE BANGLADESH

by Carolin Schattenkirchner, Jochen 'erich' Abel

SYNOPSIS

MAYBE BANGLADESH ... these words, spoken by a Nepalese cook in Bavaria, Germany, set the ball rolling. What we get is a trip of imaginative dimensions. Erich, a musician with itchy feet, wants to track an unlabeled cassette back to where it originated. All because of a haunting voice singing of Govinda. A sound Erich just can't get out of his head. Will Erich find the singer? Is there a divine plan at work in the background? And just who is Govinda? This simple but captivating tale was documented on video. But rather than a straightforward documentation, the film blends the story of Erich's journey with fiction and embellishes it with cartoons and humour.

FESTIVALS

Filmschau Baden-Württemberg; Bollywood&Beyond Stuttgart; Globians world&culture, Berlin; Luzern, Chennai

CAST AND CREW

DIRECTOR Carolin Schattenkirchner, Jochen 'erich' Abel

Germany 2010

50 min

FORMAL CATEGORIES

Coming of Age, Music, Travelling

ORIGINAL LANGUAGES

German

PREMIERE

Germany (2010)