SYNOPSIS

Ever since banishment from paradise, mankind tries to regain the paradisiacal state of abundance without labor. Nowadays, in the beginning postindustrial era the dream threatens to become reality. A working society running out of work brings forth strange fruit. Whilst the one enjoy climbing courses on the ruins of past industrialization, others are forced in federal measures to train work without work. The film goes on a journey into a future that has already begun long ago: The end of the working society. But every end is also the starting point for pilot projects, ideas and visions.
