

RUM & REVOLUTION – HISTORY OF HAVANA

by Fabian Wolf

SYNOPSIS

Havana is a dazzling metropolis in the middle of the last century: music clubs, casinos, shows - the city's nightlife is legendary. Havana is known as the "Paris of the Caribbean". Its flair and pleasant Caribbean climate attract writers such as Ernest Hemingway, celebrities such as Marlon Brando, Ava Gardner and Frank Sinatra and even political greats such as Winston Churchill and John F. Kennedy. But the city is controlled by the American mafia. And the excessive party life contrasts with the bitter poverty on the island. Revolution is only a matter of time.
