

THE NEUMANNs - THAT'S LIFE

by Wolfgang Ettllich (MGS Filmproduktion)

SYNOPSIS

In 1980, Oliver Neumann is 14 years old and always in trouble with his parents. He can't decide whether to become a punk or a member of the Bagwan-Movement. He is going through puberty, rebels against society and is part of the couldn't-care-less-generation. Wolfgang Ettllich followed Oliver until 1995 on his search for identity and his way of growing-up. Over the years Oliver got married and became father of two sons Nicolas and David. 10 years later, in 2005, his sons are in the same age, as he was back then. At this point the movie „The Neumanns - That's life“ starts. The film portrays the life of the ex-punk, but the roles have changed. Now Oliver fights with the pubescent kids and has to give them, together with his wife Ellen, values and ways for their future... while Grandfather Lutz wisely analyses the situation over the years. A family history over 30 years and 3 generations: The generation of the 68s, punk and hip hop. A film as life is.
