

TITO'S GLASSES

by Regina Schilling

SYNOPSIS

Portrait of actress, author and director Adriana Altaras. Adriana Altaras is a director, actress and writer. And she is from a country which no longer exists: Yugoslavia. The daughter of Jewish partisans who fought for Tito and later started a new life in post-war Germany, in this lovely film she tells the story of her 'high maintenance family'. Adriana's domestic situation appears unusual at first glance, but can be seen as typical of the generation born after the War. Despite a high standard of living, the wounds from her parents' past can be felt, even to this day, and the search for her own roots are her constant companion.
