

TRACES TO GRAFENECK

by Yvonne Lachmann, Nora Mazurek

SYNOPSIS

The film "Traces to Grafeneck" accompanies an inclusive ensemble during the creation and performance of a street theatre play about Grafeneck. In 1940 - in Grafeneck - 10,654 people who fell under the National Socialist concept of "unworthy of life" were murdered in a gas chamber within the space of one year. Dealing with Grafeneck provokes the actors to ask specific questions about their social recognition. This in turn confronts us all as a society with our own values and objectives.
