

WALK 1-9

by Antonia Lerch

SYNOPSIS

I was looking for strange worlds in Berlin, in this big city, where I live since many years. Aimless I was drifting through unknown terrains, looking for something by chance. I met Germans and foreigners, immigrants and refugees from different cultures. They told me their individual stories, which also concern global themes: War, escape, work, flat, hunger, illness, love and death. Stories telling about joy and sorrow, but also about dreams and hopes.
